What GamePlanIQ does

A Little League operating system: one app for the league office, the coaches, the families and the kids. This guide lists every feature by section, what it does, and why it helps.

Try the demo: https://claude.ai/artifact/K8t2w35433THXNjagfhfqF

Click Go into demo mode. A guided tour walks through every screen and says what to click. Skip this section jumps ahead; Hide lets you explore. Or pick a role on the welcome page: Parent, Player, Head Coach, Assistant Coach, League President, Treasurer, Minor Commissioner, Umpire, Volunteer or Platform Admin. All data is fictional and can be reset.

Fits with Little League: registration and fees stay in Little League Central Registration (Sports Connect today, PlayMetrics next). Import the roster; run everything else here.

Families

For parents and guardians, including the ones who never played.

Feature	What it does	Why it helps
Home and daily digest	Today's field status, the next game or practice, duties, forms and report cards in one place; switch to the week ahead.	One glance replaces a dozen emails and group texts.
Team page	Roster, schedule, results, documents, duties, carpools and photos for the child's team.	Everything about the team lives in one shared place.
Game-day duties	Claim snacks, scorekeeper, dugout parent or pitch counter in one tap; reminder the day before.	No paper sign-up sheets; coaches see coverage at once.
Carpools	Offer seats to a game; parents add only their own child; the driver is told who is riding.	Rides are organized without a group chat.
Family calendar	One calendar file for every child's games, practices, duties and deadlines, with reminders.	Reaches families who never open an app.
Notifications	Every notice in one center; each person picks topics and quiet hours; rainouts always get through.	The right people hear the right thing, without overload.
Messages	Team threads and messages with the coach; no phone numbers exchanged; player accounts cannot message.	Safer communication with a record of what was said.
Report cards	Ten skills, three strengths, one focus, and lessons chosen for that focus; private to the family.	Parents know exactly how to help at home.
Forms	Medical information, consents and anything else the league asks, once per child, from a phone.	No paper forms; medical answers reach only the coach, safety officer and president.
Registration	Five steps on a phone: child, division, forms, payment, review. Age and eligibility are checked as you go.	Fewer mistakes and no forms sent back.
Payment plans	Split fees into two to six monthly installments, with reminders before each one.	Cost is less of a barrier to playing.

Feature	What it does	Why it helps
Player history and recap	A timeline of seasons, positions, attendance, report cards and badges; a printable season recap.	The whole story follows the child from T-ball up.
Tournament bracket	Follow the end-of-season bracket; winners move on automatically from the scorebook.	Families always know who plays next.
Surveys	Two-minute surveys; the board sees totals and anonymous comments only.	Honest feedback the league can act on.

Players and development

For kids and the adults helping them practice.

Feature	What it does	Why it helps
Player Academy	Lessons by skill and age, each with a verified drill video, parent instructions and a short backyard practice.	Kids improve between practices, not only at them.
Parent Academy	Plain-language guides: equipment, rules by division, pitch counts, handling a bad game.	Parents who never played can still coach at home.
Practice generator	Pick a skill and the minutes available; get a warm-up, drills and a fun challenge for that age.	A good ten-minute practice in seconds.
Baseball IQ	Situation questions on a diamond: tap where the ball goes; every answer is explained.	Builds game sense kids rarely get taught.
Badges and challenges	Earned for lessons, practices and quizzes; about effort, never statistics; no leaderboards.	Motivates without comparing kids.
Player account	A child's own dashboard with no messaging and no comparison to teammates.	Kids engage safely under a parent's account.

Coaches

For volunteer head and assistant coaches.

Feature	What it does	Why it helps
Coaches' Headquarters	Teams, practice planner, game day, certification, tryouts and All-Star ballots on one page.	A volunteer finds everything without training.
Game plan (private)	Plan each inning on the familiar sheet: 3B, SS, 2B, 1B, LF, CF, RF, C, Pitcher, Relief, Roster. Flags a kid placed twice, pitcher rest and minimum innings. Only the head coach sees it unless shared; prints a dugout card; sends to the lineup card.	Lineup decisions are made calmly before game day, privately.
Game day	Lineup card checks minimum play and pitcher rest; one-thumb scorebook with pitch counts; Final updates standings.	No clipboard math in the dugout; rules are kept automatically.
Pitch counts and rest	Pitches from the scorebook turn into required rest days by age; resting pitchers are flagged.	Protects young arms and keeps the league compliant.
Practice planner and runner	Builds a practice from the drill library, then runs it full screen with a timer, cues, diagram, video and attendance.	A first-year coach runs an organized practice.
Season curriculum	Assign a weekly program; the team sees this week's focus and which weeks were actually run.	Skills build in order across the season.
Drill diagrams	Players, cones and equipment drawn on a field with throw and run arrows, shown with each drill.	Coaches set up a drill right the first time.

Feature	What it does	Why it helps
Team tools	Roster notes, attendance, home practice assignments, report cards and evaluations.	One place for what a coach tracks all season.
Tryouts and All-Stars	Score players one to five at six stations on a phone; nominate and vote for All-Stars.	Fair, documented decisions instead of memory.
Certification	Six short safety and conduct modules with a quiz each; renewals tracked.	Every adult around kids is trained and on record.
Incident reports	Report an injury or problem from the field in a minute; the safety officer reviews it.	Nothing gets lost between the field and the board.

League office

For the president, board, commissioners and other volunteers who run the league.

Registration and rosters

Feature	What it does	Why it helps
Registration review	Every registration with documents, payment status and eligibility; approve, waitlist or ask for a fix.	Registrars work one list instead of spreadsheets.
Central Registration import	Paste a Sports Connect or PlayMetrics export; every row is checked and previewed before saving.	Works with Little League's required system, not against it.
Teams and Form teams	Create teams and assign coaches. For divisions without a draft, Form teams keeps siblings together, honors buddy and coach requests and balances strength.	Fair teams in minutes, with requests handled.
Tryouts, draft and All-Stars	Tryout scores feed a snake draft with balance warnings; All-Star ballots are tallied privately.	Transparent selection that families trust.

Schedule, fields and umpires

Feature	What it does	Why it helps
Scheduling	Drag games to another day; field, team, coach and umpire conflicts are flagged.	Schedules without double-bookings.
Rainout tool and field status	Close a field, move or cancel its games and tell every family in one step.	Weather calls take one minute, not an evening of texts.
Umpires	Assign by availability with conflict hints; set pay by division; record payments.	Every game covered and every umpire paid correctly.
Tournaments	Round robin, single or double elimination, or pools then a bracket; games land on calendars.	The end-of-season tournament runs itself.

Volunteers and safety

Feature	What it does	Why it helps
Volunteers	Shifts, background checks and coach certification in one view, with reminders.	Compliance is visible before it becomes a problem.
Safety	Incident reviews, a safety plan builder with starter text, and first-aid kit checks per field.	Ready for the yearly Little League safety plan.

Money

Feature	What it does	Why it helps
Finances	Revenue, expenses, refunds, financial assistance and budget versus actual by category.	The treasurer reports to the board in minutes.
Payment plans	See every installment plan and what is overdue; send reminders in one click.	Fees get collected without awkward chasing.
Sponsors and fundraising	Sponsors, levels, logos and what was promised; fundraiser tracking.	Sponsors get what they paid for and renew.
Field improvement calculator	Board-ready estimates for turf and field projects, with a printable summary.	Big decisions start from real numbers.

Communication, content and records

Feature	What it does	Why it helps
Communications	Announcements to the right audience; published rules decide who hears what and when.	Fewer missed messages and fewer complaints.
Public website	Edit the headline, documents and board page, then publish. No rosters or kids' names are ever public.	A current website without a web volunteer.
Forms and evaluations	Build any form from templates: evaluations, medical, volunteer applications, feedback, requests.	Replaces paper and scattered online forms.
Academy content	Adjust lessons, videos, diagrams and curricula for the league, with version history and undo.	Teach the league's own way of playing.
Surveys and reports	Season surveys with year-over-year results; reports and an audit log for the board.	Decisions backed by data, with a record of who changed what.
Board overview link	A read-only summary for sponsors and officials, with no player names.	Share progress safely outside the board.
Season close-out	Awards with an engraving list, uniform returns, inventory, banquet, archive; roll over to next season.	Nothing is forgotten between seasons.
Staff and permissions	Each role gets exactly the access it needs, checked on every action.	Volunteers see only what they should.

Platform

For whoever hosts GamePlanIQ for one or many leagues.

Feature	What it does	Why it helps
Onboard a league	A short wizard: name, colors, season, divisions, teams and fields; ends on a working league office.	A new league is running in about fifteen minutes.
Separate leagues	Each league's data is kept apart; a new league starts empty.	Leagues can share a platform without sharing data.
Plans and health	Subscriptions, platform-wide content and system status.	One operator can support many leagues.

Privacy by design

- Permissions are enforced on every action, not just hidden in menus.
- No player names or rosters on public pages. Photo and video use follow each family's consent.
- Report cards, medical answers, evaluations and coaches' game plans stay with the people who need them.
- At deployment: card payments, email and text messages, and an installable phone app connect. In the demo, the in-app record and the family calendar already work.
